Bonnaroo and Lollapalooza return with lineups that do not disappoint.

THE PRESIDENTS
Four campus leaders discuss their hopes, plans for next year

KINGS OF THE HILL
These twelve athletes have left a historic mark on the Big Red

Tennis pulls off state three-peat

By Anthony Swenson
Staff Writer

On Wednesday, May 23, the MBA Tennis team clinched its third consecutive TSSAA State Championship, defeating MUS 4-1. Led by Senior Palmer Campbell ('12), MBA defeated MUS 4-1. Campbell defeated his opponent 6-4, 6-4, clinching the team’s victory in his final tennis match for the Big Red. Kalyan Chadalavada ('14) and Andrew Graham ('14) won their singles matches as well. In doubles, the team of Mark Lowe ('13) and Andrew Karpos ('13) clinched the doubles point winning 9-7. Graham and Chadalavada won their doubles match as well.

This win marked MBA Tennis’ first three-peat. Karpos said that the team was able to win because, “we had a lot of...”

School plans new China exchange

By Andrew Karpos
Staff Writer

As soon as next year, the MBA international exchange program could add China to its lengthening list of countries, which now includes Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and England. Headmaster Brad Gioia and first-year Chinese teacher Ying Zhang are currently working on establishing this program.

Mr. Gioia was inspired to create the new exchange because of “the importance of China on the world stage and the value of sending students taking Chinese to China.” He later approached Mrs. Zhang to see if she would aid him in setting up this connection with a Chinese school.

Mr. Gioia and Mrs. Zhang then began the process of deciding with which...
Through the Tape: Keith Gambill ('14) outruns his competitors to win the Van Webb Memorial Founders Day Race for the Class of 2014. Gambill cited race course changes, necessitated by construction, as a factor in his victory.

Gambill ('14) sprints to Founder’s Day glory

By Eric Anderson
Staff Writer

Sophomore Keith Gambill ('14) emerged victorious in a running of the Van Webb Memorial Founder’s Day Race altered by recent campus changes, but not lacking in the traditional excitement and outpouring of class pride.

Van Webb, MBA graduate and nephew of the current chairman of the MBA Board, who unfortunately died of cancer while a student at Vanderbilt, played football and ran track for the Big Red. Each year, in remembrance of Van and his importance to the track team, one representative from each high school class runs a race around the quad, mimicking a similar scene in the movie “Chariots of Fire.”

Due to the construction of the new Wallace Hall, the course changed its starting and finishing position this year. The usual start from the gate at the football stadium changed to a closer start near the back entrance of the Carter building. Also, the finish line was moved forward a few yards to avoid the runners hitting the construction wall.

With this adjustment, Keith Gambill said, “I think taking that out extra turn next to the construction site worked to my advantage.” Since the race became shorter, it became more of a sprint than a test of endurance compared to years past.

The senior class was represented by Roe Moore ('12), the juniors by Cade Hooper ('13) and the freshmen by Tobi Kehinde ('15).

As usual, the race began on the third strike of the bell at 10 o’clock. Once the runners got off the line, Keith made a dash to the outside, a risky, but ultimately rewarding move. Cutting to the outside allowed a less severe turn and gave him the lead. As the runners passed the Ball Building, Keith maintained the lead, with Roe and Cade running closely behind.

When they got to the turn at the end of the Ball Building, Cade Hooper’s shirt was torn in half by Roe Moore in a desperate attempt to take the lead. Keith remarked: “I felt really lucky that Roe took out Cade. Without that, I don’t think I would have won.”

Once again, Keith went wide on the final turn, where many times the race is won or lost. He won by a decent margin, with Cade and Tobi in second and third. A sudden mob of sophomores came to congratulate Keith on his victory. Fellow sophomore Ben Yahnian ('14) gave Keith a well-deserved “bro hug” for defeating the rest of the field.

Next year’s juniors will have to choose wisely in order to defend their title. Until then, they can savor the taste of victory.

Board approves tuition, budget for 2012-2013 school year

By Aaron Kaplan
Staff Writer

The tuition for the 2012-2013 school year will be $21,250. This sum represents a 4.04% increase from this school year’s tuition, which was $20,425.

For all of our accomplishments in the classroom and on the field, we each individually feel a sense of satisfaction in keeping the tuition low. In fact, the tuition for the 2011-2012 school year was $20,425, a 3.2% increase from the 2010-2011 school year.

Tuition for the 2012-2013 school year has increased by 4.04% ($825) from the year before, this increase is in fact surprisingly low. Each year, tuition must increase to account for rising healthcare prices, rising gas prices, utilities and other costs of this sort.

In terms of year-specific reasons for the price increase, Mr. Jackson said that the small increase reflects the growing use of technology, the need for maintenance and custodial work in the new buildings and the growing student and faculty body for which to provide. Interestingly, tuition money does not go towards the new construction projects such as Lowry and the new dining hall themselves. Only some of the tuition revenue will contribute to paying off the interest on MBA’s loan for those projects.

The new buildings also will cost the school more money in utility bills. These buildings are and will be much more energy-efficient than Wallace Hall, meaning that MBA’s spending on energy, etc. will be much more effective. The sizes of the buildings, however, will result in an overall larger utility bill.

Tuition provides for about 80% of the school’s spending budget, with the other 20% being accounted for by annual giving and earnings from the endowment. Faculty salaries and benefits cost 60-70% of the school’s spending budget, with the rest of the budget used to pay for utilities, supplies, maintenance, and technology, to name a few examples.

The school pays both Sage Dining Services (food service) and Trust Building Services (custodial service) for their work on campus. Those two companies are contracted and manage their own budgets within the money amount they are paid by MBA.

MBA places a large emphasis on keeping the tuition low. In fact, the tuition increases over the past three years are among the lowest in Middle Tennessee. MBA’s tuition is less expensive than those of Harpeth Hall and Ensworth, and the school’s average tuition increase spanning the 1992-1993 school year to the 2012-2013 school year is 6.81%, meaning that MBA will have had seven years of tuition percent increase below this average value.

MBA has remained successfully in line with the budget this year and hopes to continue this financial balance.
Civil War novel selected as all-school read

By Matt Miccoli
Staff Writer

Breaking a recent trend of non-fiction works, Shelby Foote’s “Shiloh,” a historical fiction novel set at the 1862 Battle of Shiloh, will be the upcoming all-school read.

Through a first-person viewpoint, the novel chronicles seven soldiers fighting near Pittsburg Landing, providing insight into the bloody details of what is considered one of the major battles of the Civil War. The soldiers are able to shed light on the generals and their decisions, as well as display the confusion and chaos of combat. However, there is minimal characterization, with the soldiers being used by Foote only as instruments for narration.

With the selection process having always been surrounded by an air of secrecy and mysticism, Mr. Haywood Moxley, head of the English department, was able to explain the situation: “For a variation upon the old model has been adopted. “Mr. Gioia, with input from various teachers, parents, and students, has considered appropriate titles,” said Mr. Moxley. “We then decide together which book might be the most interesting and meaningful for us to read as a school.”

Mr. Moxley first discovered Shelby Foote in a course in college, in which he read Foote’s famous “The Civil War: A Narrative.” After realizing that 2012 is a battle into a story, instead of a lesson.”

Mr. Moxley commented, “It seemed like the kind of book a Tennessee boys school should have on its reading list. I liked it a lot—turning a battle into a story, instead of a lesson.”

Dr. Bailey, also hoping for a historical book, explained slight concerns that recreating the excitement of “Unbroken” and Mr. Louie Moxley’s campus visit may be more difficult for “Shiloh” since Foote is now deceased.

The historical tie-ins, the battle scenes and the short length, already making the book popular with the faculty and staff, should make the book popular with everyone. Dr. Bailey commented, “While ‘Unbroken’ is focused on an individual’s heroic story, ‘Shiloh’ is a contrast, centered on a battle.”

In fact, in the selection process, fewer other works were suggested, and with “Shiloh” being so strongly received, no others were given much serious consideration.

One potential issue is that “Shiloh,” much like last year’s selection, “Unbroken.” However, both Dr. Bailey and librarian Mr. Robbie Quinn expressed slight concerns that recreating the excitement of “Unbroken” and Mr. Louie Zamerperi’s campus visit may be more difficult for “Shiloh” since Foote is now deceased.

Key card locks to be used on new Wallace

By Sam Weien
Business Manager

As students return from the winter break of 2012-13, they will eagerly want to take their first steps into New Wallace. But, the key cards getting in without their student ID cards.

Next year, an electronic key card system will be outfitted on the new Wallace building. This marks a significant step in making the campus more secure. According to Maintenance Director Mr. David Norton, “We are going to see if we can retrofit all buildings, and if so, it would be on all buildings.”

The system does more than shut doors. It allows the school to keep tabs on all students’ entering and leaving buildings. Moreover, the ID cards, which would indicate attendance, library history and security, could be programmed to work only at certain times.

New process aims to discourage course dropping

By Davis Lovvorn
Staff Writer

Starting next year, the school will make it more difficult for a student to “drop down” from a higher-level to a lower-level course.

“MBA students will no longer be able to change levels whenever they want to,” said Dr. Rick Seay, Director of the High School. “Beginning with the next academic school year, students will only be able to change a level after the first semester.”

However, the new policy on course dropping contains some elements from the current policy. “If a student has six courses, he may still drop a course up through the end of the 1st quarter without its appearing on his record. Changing levels is what won’t be allowed until the semester’s end.”

Formerly, students were able to drop a course or change a level after the first few weeks of school. Students and parents will no longer have the power to instigate the process, either. “Changing levels right now requires the department head’s approval,” said Dr. Seay. “In the fall, changes will be made only if the department head recommends it.”

With the new process in place, the school anticipates a considerable reduction in the number of course changes.

Every year MBA participates in several national language competitions, flexing its linguistic muscles.

In the National Spanish Exam, there were 37 students receiving gold awards. Conner Griffin ('13) ranked in the 99th percentile and Davis Lovvorn ('14) scored eighth in Tennessee in Spanish I, Diego Martinez ('15) scored third in Spanish II (Bilingual), Jake Macey ('13) scored seventh in Spanish III, Barry Goldsmith ('13) scored in the 99th percentile nationally for Spanish IV and David Arteaga ('12) took first in Tennessee in Spanish IV (Outside Experience).

In the National German Exam, Joseph Robinson ('12) and Braden Welborn ('14) both won Gold awards, placing in the 94th and 92nd percentile, respectively.

Chris Habermann ('13) placed second out of 154 competitors in the state, leaving him in the 99th percentile nationally, and Marshall Sorensen ('12) scored in the 95th national percentile.

In the National French Contest, Ben Yahnnian ('13) scored sixth and Michael Piana ('13) ninth nationally in French II. In French III, Lucas Littlejohn ('13) finished seventh. Baker Swain ('12) finished seventh and Rob Edwards ('12) eleventh in French IV.

The historical tie-ins, the battle scenes and the short length, already making the book popular with the faculty and staff, should make the book popular with everyone, Dr. Bailey commented, “Shiloh” being so strongly received, no others were given much serious consideration.

One potential issue is that “Shiloh,” being sixty years old, may be challenging to acquire, possibly turning many readers to electronic copies. Mr. Quinn commented that “pdf files of the book may be had for free at archives.org.”

Students excel on language exams

By Christian Sargent
Staff Writer

By Davis Lovvorn
Staff Writer

Students excel on language exams

By Christian Sargent
Staff Writer

Key card locks to be used on new Wallace

By Sam Weien
Business Manager

New process aims to discourage course dropping

By Davis Lovvorn
Staff Writer

Starting next year, the school will make it more difficult for a student to “drop down” from a higher-level to a lower-level course.

“MBA students will no longer be able to change levels whenever they want to,” said Dr. Rick Seay, Director of the High School. “Beginning with the next academic school year, students will only be able to change a level after the first semester.”

However, the new policy on course dropping contains some elements from the current policy. “If a student has six courses, he may still drop a course up through the end of the 1st quarter without its appearing on his record. Changing levels is what won’t be allowed until the semester’s end.”

Formerly, students were able to drop a course or change a level after the first few weeks of school. Students and parents will no longer have the power to instigate the process, either. “Changing levels right now requires the department head’s approval,” said Dr. Seay. “In the fall, changes will be made only if the department head recommends it.”

With the new process in place, the school anticipates a considerable reduction in the number of course changes.

Every year MBA participates in several national language competitions, flexing its linguistic muscles.

In the National Spanish Exam, there were 37 students receiving gold awards. Conner Griffin ('13) ranked in the 99th percentile and Davis Lovvorn ('14) scored eighth in Tennessee in Spanish I, Diego Martinez ('15) scored third in Spanish II (Bilingual), Jake Macey ('13) scored seventh in Spanish III, Barry Goldsmith ('13) scored in the 99th percentile nationally for Spanish IV and David Arteaga ('12) took first in Tennessee in Spanish IV (Outside Experience).

In the National German Exam, Joseph Robinson ('12) and Braden Welborn ('14) both won Gold awards, placing in the 94th and 92nd percentile, respectively.

Chris Habermann ('13) placed second out of 154 competitors in the state, leaving him in the 99th percentile nationally, and Marshall Sorensen ('12) scored in the 95th national percentile.

In the National French Contest, Ben Yahnnian ('13) scored sixth and Michael Piana ('13) ninth nationally in French II. In French III, Lucas Littlejohn ('13) finished seventh. Baker Swain ('12) finished seventh and Rob Edwards ('12) eleventh in French IV.
For some, retirement beckons. For others, new opportunities arise.

By Tarun Mallipeddi
Staff Writer

This summer, several MBA faculty members will be leaving the school for various reasons. Some will be moving away, some retiring, and some pursuing further education. The teachers who will be leaving the Hill after this school year are Mr. Epstein, Mr. McIntosh, Mr. Mawae, and Mr. Sharbel, while Mrs. Kirby and Dr. Neergaard will be retiring.

Ending their careers

Long-time chemistry teacher Dr. Jon Neergaard, is retiring after 28 years at MBA, having decided that he did not want to teach next year. He will be staying in Nashville.

With regard to his future plans, he simply said, “That’s the future.” He did, however, voice his passion for the guitar, as many have seen during his performances at assembly, and his skills. He also expressed interest in reading more, cleaning up his house and staying in Nashville.

Neergaard will be retiring.

“I’ve enjoyed my time. I’ve enjoyed the students that I’ve gotten to know.” He has loved interacting with so many people impressive in many different fields and he has taken away many good experiences and lessons from his 28-year career at MBA.

Mrs. Kirby, the alumni records manager and alumni office receptionist, will be leaving after 19 years of working on the Hill. She will still live in Brentwood and has no definite plans yet. However, she did express interest in increased volunteer work, involvement with her church, and more frequent reading.

She made the decision to retire just this year but plans on returning to visit with friends. She is also going to spend time with some teachers who have already retired.

Now that she is retiring, she plans to travel more and visit friends who live out of town. She might go to visit New Mexico and stay with her sister for a month. Additionally, she wants to foster some animals for the shelter, saying, “I’m a real animal person.”

When asked how MBA changed her as an individual, she responded that MBA brought to her a whole new point of view concerning education, as she had come from the public school environment. She first noticed the dedication and compassion of the teachers to guide the students as a sign that MBA was a great place to thrive as an individual.

The friendships she made are far-reaching and will last a lifetime. Her main reservation as she considered retirement was that she would be leaving behind so many friends. As with retired teachers, she will be coming back again and again to visit.

“Even after 19 years, when I get up in the morning and don’t mind coming to work, it almost makes me feel like I’ve won the lottery,” said Mrs. Kirby.

Changing course

Mr. Epstein, a math teacher, will be leaving next year to pursue a master’s degree in secondary education at Vanderbilt. As he put it, he is not really leaving as much as “evolving like a Pokémon.” After his two-year program is completed, he may return to MBA to work or as a reincarnated student.

Mr. Epstein believes that MBA has changed him greatly, making him a better teacher and also made him more knowledgeable than he originally wanted to be about “beasts,” “swag” and Call of Duty. As he finished the interview, he said, “I would like to thank all of my fellow faculty and students and John Yoders (completely different category) for being part of the last 4 years of my life.”

Kristine Yu, mother of Tony Ding (’16), has been hired as the new math teacher.

Mark McIntosh, the athletic trainer, will be going to a 27-month “physician’s assistant” program at Trevecca Nazarene University after 5 years at MBA. Brandon Thomsberry will be taking his role as head athletic trainer next year. Since Mr. McIntosh will still be in Nashville, he is going to make himself available to cover some sports events and looks forward to dropping in once in a while.

Mr. McIntosh feels that MBA has given him developed relationships and the ability to help people. These relationships have impacted him and, he hopes, the guys as well. As he put it, “I want to say thanks to all the faculty and students here; I’m certainly going to miss all my time here.”

Mr. Mawae, the dean of junior and senior classes and the offensive line coach, of the football team will be moving to Baton Rouge, Louisiana to be with his family. Both he and his wife attended LSU and have spent 18 years living away from their families. He plans on doing more traveling, watching more LSU games, and becoming more involved with his church.

Although he has only been working for MBA for about one and a half years since last January), he believes that MBA has allowed him to see things in a new perspective. He parted with these words: “I appreciate all the faculty and students and the respect they afforded me. I will remember it for a long time.”

Colonel Sharbel, the U.S. history teacher and the rifle team coach, will be moving to Pinehurst, North Carolina at the end of the month for a professional opportunity after 7 years at MBA. He will be the chief operations officer for a tactical equipment distribution company, and Mr. Lee Webb will assume most of his responsibilities.

Mr. Sharbel believes that MBA was a great opportunity to work with and develop young men for collegiate life, and he will return to visit. He also said to never say never in terms of returning in a professional capacity. He closed the interview with this statement: “I really appreciate the opportunity I’ve been given by the parents at MBA to work with their sons during the last 7 years and wish MBA all success in the future.”

Bowman (’13) wins national accolades for novel plasma device

By John Mellow
co-News Editor

This May, Adam Bowman placed well in two national competitions, the Junior Science and Humanities Symposium (JSHS) in Washington, D.C. and the Intel International Science and Engineering Fair (ISEF) in Pittsburgh.

Bowman explored the operation of a dense plasma focus device, a device which creates a short burst of very hot and dense plasma. By designing one that operates at low voltages, Bowman created a portable and user-friendly pulsed radiation source with many practical applications.

Competing against the top two representatives of each state at the JSHS, Bowman placed second in the physics category, winning an $8,000 scholarship.

At the ISEF, which hosted approximately 1,600 competitors from nearly 60 countries, as well as an audience that included eight Nobel laureates, Bowman placed fourth in the physics category. He also received a first place award from the Office of Naval Research, which came with an $8,000 prize, a first place award from the Air Force, and a second place award from the American Vacuum Society.

Each competition required Bowman to give oral presentations and then defend his project in front of a highly critical judging panel. In fact, the nerve-wracking judging process at ISEF lasts over eight hours. In the end, however, the judges were impressed by Bowman’s work.

Bowman has devoted much of the year to this project. He quipped, “For those who were dying to know but afraid to ask, this is what I do in my spare time.” Certainly, a strong finish in both competitions and a total of $23,000 in winnings is a well-deserved reward for his dedication, and he plans to keep competing in national competitions next year.
Civil War Seminar aims to take learning beyond classroom

By John Triplett
Staff Writer

In an attempt to extend the history department beyond the topics covered at school, MBA is hosting a seminar this summer on Civil War history called the Sesquicentennial Civil War Seminar.

The course is being offered this summer in recognition of the 150th anniversary of the year 1862, when many key events in the Civil War occurred in Tennessee. It will allow students to travel to many Civil War forts and historically significant places around Nashville and Tennessee over the course of a week.

The program will start on July 23 and is available to rising 9th- through 11th-graders who excel in history courses and are interested in the Civil War.

This opportunity is one that will provide an interesting and unusual way to study history outside the classroom and explore it as if it were a hobby and a curiosity.

Said Dr. Clay Bailey, head of the history department, “The seminar both this summer and over the next few years is an important part of the larger effort to draw students into the study of the Civil War and of history more broadly, not simply as a classroom subject but as a lifelong interest and even a calling or passion.”

These Civil War seminars will continue for the next few summers, focusing on succeeding years in the Civil War, emphasizing the Western Theatre and particularly Middle Tennessee.

On different days of the expedition, the six to eight students participating in the experience will travel to various forts and battlefields around Tennessee, including Fort Negley, Fort Donelson, Fort Henry and Shiloh National Battlefield.

The group will also go to the State Archives and other places around Nashville, and they will listen to a few speakers ranging from someone from the Battle of Nashville Preservation Society to a Metro Historian.

While at these sites, the group will focus on many topics, such as General Grant’s capture of Forts Henry and Donelson, the movement of the Union forces toward Nashville, the Battle of Shiloh and life as a Civil War soldier.

With the help of Mr. Barry McAlister, MBA’s film instructor, the students will also learn how to manage the film equipment they will use throughout the week of trips and seminars. The video will be used as an entry in next year’s Full Moon Film Festival.

After the last official day of the seminar, the members of the group will work in teams to meet deadlines to enter into National History Day and the Full Moon Film Festival, making public their newfound knowledge of the Civil War.

Science Olympiad team places 36th at national tournament

By Karthik Sastry
and Harry Stewart

On Saturday, May 19, the Big Red Scientists competed in the 2012 National Science Olympiad tournament at the University of Central Florida in Orlando. This year marked MBA’s third consecutive and fourth overall appearance at the competition, to which it advanced by winning the state tournament in April.

Out of the 60 teams present, MBA placed 36th, improving upon its position from last year by only one place. Specific successes included finishing 8th in Thermodynamics (with Joe Scherrer (‘12) and Chris Habermann (‘13)), 11th in Helicopters (Sam Hurd (‘14) and Hamilton Millwee (‘13)) and 12th in Fermi Questions (Joe Scherrer (‘12) and Hunter Tidwell (‘13)).

At the competition, the team members competed in a myriad of science-based activities, ranging from operating a homemade robotic hand to identifying distant astronomical objects. Overall scores are tabulated by taking the sum of placements across 23 events, in each of which two or three students participate; lower totals mean better placement.

For the second consecutive year, Solon High School (OH) won the high school division, edging out rival Troy High School (CA).

MBA’s team will be losing many key senior contributors, but believes it retains enough talent to be the favorites at next year’s state competition. A state victory would mean the team gets another shot at improving its national standing in 2013.

арт - антиквьры - цветы
4115 hillsboro rd.
zia
“I love Dr. Gluck!”
-Spanky the Ewok, The Bell Ringer’s mascot

Daniel Gluck 2003
Jonathan Gluck 2004

2002 Richard Jones Road Ste. A-200
615-269-5903
www.drgluck.com
Serious appeals can win elections

By McKay Proctor and John Mellow

We have been promised ziplines between buildings. We have been promised shorts socks and long hair. We have been promised car bash after car bash after car bash. But where are our ziplines?

Student election season has long been a parade of speeches that aim for the lowest common denominator in each of us. For any given class, a dozen young men may stand before the students and make promises in jest and eclipse the hopes of more sober candidates—some of whom may have been more qualified or dedicated.

While the tangible power of student officers can be debated, they are our primary sounding board for new ideas and arbiters of change at their most powerful, and at the very least the representatives of our classes and school.

This is not to say that the election process should be treated like a powdered-wig and party-platform affair, but elections deserve some sort of respect. We are choosing the people we believe best represent us. The student body does not possess the ability to hire and fire or alter the curriculum, but these elections constitute our main opportunity to change the way the school is run. No matter how inconsequential in the eyes of cynics, the process has at least some meaning.

That meaning manifested itself in the most recent election for student body president. With no offense at all intended to the other candidates, the most serious guy won. For once, someone who talked about conviction instead of banning pasta won the day. In Morris Eguakan the students chose someone who spoke from an authentic place of passion, someone who won his first position on the student council this spring because he gave us a refreshing perspective.

All too often clichés like “popularity contest” dominate not just the way elections play out, but the way we talk about them. Students may be afraid to express an opinion that goes against the grain. This election’s outcome, though, marked a rare intersection of the twin forces of student political fatigue and the candidate’s genuine emotion.

Amateur political pundits broke the election down in various ways. Some claimed the humorous speeches “split the vote,” but the message seems clear regardless: the student body wanted conviction over comedy. This election marks a step in the right direction whether this trend continues or not. Morris refused the all-too-common path of shooting for the best punch-line and gave us real emotion and commitment. The Student Body President was chosen for his heart.
Lost amidst a sea of Brits
A student recounts his adventures at Eton College

By Robert Papel
Staff Exchange Student

England. The name resounds with hundreds of years of history, but for Americans we tend to think of the Revolutionary War and mad kings.

Recently, I was lucky enough to attend the English boarding school Eton College for the Lent term. As an American inserted into a very traditional, elite school like Eton, which has churned out nineteen prime ministers, celebrities like Bear Grylls and Hugh Laurie and both royal princes, I was stepping into a world older than the United States itself.

On my arrival to Eton, I was warmly welcomed into Manor House, known as TEJN to the Eton community. There are twenty-five houses at Eton, all known after the initials of the current house master. Manor House was the home of a variety of important people, including HRH Prince William and HRH Prince Harry.

Classes, or “divs,” as they are commonly known, started immediately. I was placed in US politics, English, history, American Civil War (at first, and then the French Revolution) and art.

Each “div” was 40 minutes long, and three days a week classes finished for the day at lunch. After lunch Etonians make their way to a variety of sport, including rowing, beagling (yes, running around with a pack of dogs) and the Eton Field Game, a sport unique to Eton that combines rugby and soccer. The Field Game is extremely complex, and though I played it multiple times, I never really understood the rules.

When comparing Eton and MBA, Eton wins for best schedule. I think most people on The Hill would love to get out after lunch (wishful thinking, I know). Etonians mostly sleep, or revert into that “I’m-up-way-too-early-to-be-wearing-a-full-tail-suit” stupor.

Probably one of the most distinguishing aspects of Eton is the uniform (another winning aspect). Etonians wear tails, and, yes, I mean a full-blown tail suit with pinstripped pants and shiny black shoes, not to mention the 19th-century style snap on collar. I was told that they used to require a top hat, but that went out of style in the 1940s due to the hardship of juggling books, a top hat and a gas mask at the same time. Personally, I think the tail suit is a great tradition.

As you get older at Eton, you have the chance of becoming House Captain, a prefect, or an assortment of other titles. Along with a title, one gets to wear a stick up collar (like what people wear to prom) and a white bowtie. Ah, such class. The hundreds of tourists that pass through Eton every year are always amazed at the uniform, and if a student is out there alone, that boy will find himself the center of attention for literally dozens of cameras.

Throughout my stay in the UK, I was assaulted by a multitude of questions, from “why all Americans are so fat,” to “do Americans really party with red cups like they do in ‘American Pie’?” The former question was never asked in an offensive style, but after a while I gave up getting defensive, carefully explaining that the stereotype was not always true. For the latter question, I would direct the asker to Toby Keith’s “Red Solo Cup,” and tell them, “Yes, that is the ‘Murican style.”

Another big question was “do you like England better than America?” to which I always replied with a chorus of the most famous song in “Team America.”

Though England is amazing and welcoming, I always had that “no place like home” feeling every time I was asked about America. After all, we are “#1.” (This is the attitude that the Europeans hate in us the most, coincidentally, as pointed out by one Tom Gould, an Etonian who attended MBA for a few weeks earlier in the spring).

Overall, I would like to say that the entire experience was amazing and that I would recommend everyone to apply for an exchange, whether it be to Eton or the plethora of options those of us on The Hill have. I would like to profoundly thank Mr. Gioia, Mrs. Warner and all others who made it possible here in the US, and also Mr. Nolan, Mr. Oliphant-Callum and all those in the UK who made my stay enjoyable overseas.

“In the Company of Kings: Robert stands next to a statue of King Henry VI, who founded Eton College in 1440. The quadrangle is most familiar as the filming location for the famous race scene in “Chariots of Fire.”

IN THE COMPANY OF KINGS: Robert stands next to a statue of King Henry VI, who founded Eton College in 1440. The quadrangle is most familiar as the filming location for the famous race scene in “Chariots of Fire.”

I would like to profoundly thank Mr. Gioia, Mrs. Warner and all others who made it possible here in the US, and also Mr. Nolan, Mr. Oliphant-Callum and all those in the UK who made my stay enjoyable overseas.

“Floreat Etonae” and “Fortitudo Per Scientiam.”

Lost amidst a sea of Brits
A student recounts his adventures at Eton College

By Robert Papel
Staff Exchange Student

England. The name resounds with hundreds of years of history, but for Americans we tend to think of the Revolutionary War and mad kings.

Recently, I was lucky enough to attend the English boarding school Eton College for the Lent term. As an American inserted into a very traditional, elite school like Eton, which has churned out nineteen prime ministers, celebrities like Bear Grylls and Hugh Laurie and both royal princes, I was stepping into a world older than the United States itself.

On my arrival to Eton, I was warmly welcomed into Manor House, known as TEJN to the Eton community. There are twenty-five houses at Eton, all known after the initials of the current house master. Manor House was the home of a variety of important people, including HRH Prince William and HRH Prince Harry.

Classes, or “divs,” as they are commonly known, started immediately. I was placed in US politics, English, history, American Civil War (at first, and then the French Revolution) and art.

Each “div” was 40 minutes long, and three days a week classes finished for the day at lunch. After lunch Etonians make their way to a variety of sport, including rowing, beagling (yes, running around with a pack of dogs) and the Eton Field Game, a sport unique to Eton that combines rugby and soccer. The Field Game is extremely complex, and though I played it multiple times, I never really understood the rules.

When comparing Eton and MBA, Eton wins for best schedule. I think most people on The Hill would love to get out after lunch (wishful thinking, I know). Etonians mostly sleep, or revert into that “I’m-up-way-too-early-to-be-wearing-a-full-tail-suit” stupor.

Probably one of the most distinguishing aspects of Eton is the uniform (another winning aspect). Etonians wear tails, and, yes, I mean a full-blown tail suit with pinstripped pants and shiny black shoes, not to mention the 19th-century style snap on collar. I was told that they used to require a top hat, but that went out of style in the 1940s due to the hardship of juggling books, a top hat and a gas mask at the same time. Personally, I think the tail suit is a great tradition.

As you get older at Eton, you have the chance of becoming House Captain, a prefect, or an assortment of other titles. Along with a title, one gets to wear a stick up collar (like what people wear to prom) and a white bowtie. Ah, such class. The hundreds of tourists that pass through Eton every year are always amazed at the uniform, and if a student is out there alone, that boy will find himself the center of attention for literally dozens of cameras.

Throughout my stay in the UK, I was assaulted by a multitude of questions, from “why all Americans are so fat,” to “do Americans really party with red cups like they do in ‘American Pie’?” The former question was never asked in an offensive style, but after a while I gave up getting defensive, carefully explaining that the stereotype was not always true. For the latter question, I would direct the asker to Toby Keith’s “Red Solo Cup,” and tell them, “Yes, that is the ‘Murican style.”

Another big question was “do you like England better than America?” to which I always replied with a chorus of the most famous song in “Team America.”

Though England is amazing and welcoming, I always had that “no place like home” feeling every time I was asked about America. After all, we are “#1.” (This is the attitude that the Europeans hate in us the most, coincidentally, as pointed out by one Tom Gould, an Etonian who attended MBA for a few weeks earlier in the spring).

Overall, I would like to say that the entire experience was amazing and that I would recommend everyone to apply for an exchange, whether it be to Eton or the plethora of options those of us on The Hill have. I would like to profoundly thank Mr. Gioia, Mrs. Warner and all others who made it possible here in the US, and also Mr. Nolan, Mr. Oliphant-Callum and all those in the UK who made my stay enjoyable overseas.

“Floreat Etonae” and “Fortitudo Per Scientiam.”
Nelson Andrews
Editor-in-Chief 1944-1945

Herbert Fox
Editor-in-Chief 1945-1946

John M. Donnelly Jr.
Editor-in-Chief 1946-1947

Bernard Werthan Jr.
Editor-in-Chief 1947-1948

Henry Fitts
Editor-in-Chief 1948-1949

Dick Cantrell
Editor-in-Chief 1949-1950

Togy Jones
Editor-in-Chief 1950-1951

Watt Crockett
Editor-in-Chief 1952-1953

Dick Scales
Editor-in-Chief 1953-1954

Jim Overall
Editor-in-Chief 1954-1955

James C. Rule
Editor-in-Chief 1955-1956

Rollin Lassetter
Editor-in-Chief 1956-1957

Ira Parker
Editor-in-Chief 1957-1958

Frank Crowell
Editor-in-Chief 1958-1959

Sam Robertson
Editor-in-Chief 1959-1960

Ray Francis
Editor-in-Chief 1960-1961

Bill Ozier
Editor-in-Chief 1961-1962

Bill Oakley
Editor-in-Chief 1962-1963

Michael Ward Mooy
Editor-in-Chief 1963-1964

Frank Stevens
Editor-in-Chief 1964-1965

Hoot Sarratt
Editor-in-Chief 1965-1966

Bill Terry & Tom Holman
Editors-in-Chief 1966-1967

Stephen Neff
Editor-in-Chief 1967-1968

Henry Walker
Editor-in-Chief 1968-1969

Norvell Rose
Editor-in-Chief 1969-1970

Ben Mabry & Wade Sutton
Editors-in-Chief 1970-1971

Buck Cole
Editor-in-Chief 1971-1972

Rick Ownbey & Webb Earthman
Editors-in-Chief 1972-1973

Peter Oldham & Chris Armour
Editors-in-Chief 1973-1974

F. Mitchell Walker
Editor-in-Chief 1974-1975

Ken Witt & Justin Milam
Editors-in-Chief 1975-1976

Bill Collins & Ben Cohen
Editors-in-Chief 1976-1977

Mark Armour
Editor-in-Chief 1977-1978

Tom Groomes
Editor-in-Chief 1978-1979

George Cate
Editor-in-Chief 1979-1980

Don Fairbairn & Matt Cassell
Editors-in-Chief 1980-1981

Martin Brown & Tom Wood
Editors-in-Chief 1981-1982

Mark Oldham & Cannon Thomas
Editors-in-Chief 1982-1983

Bryan Hassel
Editor-in-Chief 1983-1984

David Chickey
Editor-in-Chief 1984-1985

Bill Cochran
Editor-in-Chief 1985-1986

Jonathan Cole
Editor-in-Chief 1986-1987

Jay Knowles & Kurt Gilliland
Editors-in-Chief 1987-1988

Jason Burroughs & Marion Southall
Editors-in-Chief 1988-1989

Andrew Duthie
Editor-in-Chief 1989-1990

Casey Jones
Editor-in-Chief 1990-1991

Alex Rogers
Editor-in-Chief 1991-1992

Will Berry
Editor-in-Chief 1992-1993

Robert West
Editor-in-Chief 1993-1994

Ted Callahan
Editor-in-Chief 1994-1995

Benjamin Purser
Editor-in-Chief 1995-1996

Lee Hampton
Editor-in-Chief 1996-1997

A.J. Byrd & Preston Bottomy
Editors-in-Chief 1997-1998

David Yi
Editor-in-Chief 1998-1999

Gabe Roth
Editor-in-Chief 1999-2000

Thompson Paine
Editor-in-Chief 2000-2001

Michael Pass
Editor-in-Chief 2001-2002

Will Choppin & John Eason
Editors-in-Chief 2002-2003

Christopher P. Schuller
Editor-in-Chief 2003-2004

Curtis Lane
Editor-in-Chief 2004-2005

Kevin Seitz
Editor-in-Chief 2005-2006

Alec McGuffey
Editor-in-Chief 2006-2007

Will Orman
Editor-in-Chief 2007-2008

Brian Swenson
Editor-in-Chief 2008-2009

Pat Killian
Editor-in-Chief 2009-2010

Andrew Powell
Editor-in-Chief 2010-2011

Karthik Sastry
Editor-in-Chief 2011-2012
Four students who will hold powerful positions on campus discuss their plans for next year.

Morrис Eguakun
Student Body President

Bell Ringer: Who or what inspired you to run for this position?
Morris Eguakun: My mom, peers and classmates recommended that I do it; also, my brother, Matthew Waller, who passed away on April 1, 2012.
BR: What facet of your personality adds the most to your leadership ability?
ME: I feel that I can relate to many other people at MBA.
BR: What other extracurricular activities are you involved in?
ME: Football, wrestling, track, and service.
BR: What is your favorite thing about MBA?
ME: The versatility, the variety of things we can do here.
BR: If you could change one thing about the school, what would it be?
ME: A couple extra minutes to get to class since Lowry is so far away.
BR: What are the school-wide goals for the student council next year?
ME: To bring forth the ideas of the students and to incorporate the junior school into the school as a whole.
BR: How will you be able to involve the whole school in the decision-making process?
ME: I’ll just talk to people and write down ideas. And if everyone brings ideas to me, I’ll be able to convey them to the administration.
BR: Favorite lunch day?
ME: Chicken patties.
BR: Coke or Pepsi?
ME: Coke.
BR: Favorite movie of all time?
ME: “Friday Night Lights.”

McKay Proctor
Senior Class President

Bell Ringer: Who or what inspired you to run for this position?
McKay Proctor: My desire to fill this role comes from how much I love the guys in my class. There are so many people in our class that inspire awe in me daily – people that are incredibly intelligent or athletic or artistic, and I want to be president to serve them.
BR: What facet of your personality adds the most to your leadership ability?
MP: I think my energy and enthusiasm are what make me a good president. My job can be a lot of cheerleading. It takes getting excited about all the things going on in the class both big and small and my energy helps with that more than anything else.
BR: What other extracurricular activities are you involved in?
MP: Debate, service, Endada, and Mock Trial.
BR: What is the senior class’s major goal this year?
MP: To leave a strong and lasting legacy.
BR: In five years, what do you want people to say about the Class of 2013?
MP: They lived up to their potential.
BR: If you could choose one word to describe the Class of 2013’s past five years, what would it be?
MP: Heterogeneous.
BR: How does it feel to lead the senior class into one final year?
MP: It’s exciting more than anything else. I’m ready to watch these guys achieve at a high level.
BR: Favorite lunch day?
MP: Old Quesadilla day.
BR: Favorite movie of all time?
MP: “The Shawshank Redemption.”

George Swenson
President of the Honor Council

Bell Ringer: Who or what inspired you to run for this position?
George Swenson: It is my fifth year on the Honor Council. The reason that I ran was so I could become President of the Honor Council and continue to serve my class.
Br: What facet of your personality adds the most to your leadership ability?
Gs: My ability to talk and relate to everyone is probably my best skill.
BR: What other extracurricular activities are you involved in?
GS: Associate Editor of the Bell Ringer, track team, and swimming.
BR: Since the Honor Council constitution was just revised last year, what will be the major goal of the Honor Council this year?
GS: The major goal is to clear up the student perception of the Honor Council. Too often students feel that the Honor Council is a police force out to get them. But because it is a student-run board, it actually acts in a helpful way.
BR: How will the Honor Council run differently under the new constitution?
GS: As far as running, it will be fairly similar. We took away the Treasurer position and added the Sergeant at Arms. Also, there will be no co-Vice President. Other than that, it should remain the same.
BR: How much more difficult does the internet make enforcing Honor Council policy?
GS: It is by far the most used source of cheating because students can access the internet anywhere, and there is no way of enforcing it. This is when the student-run honor code becomes integral, but it is hard because it is student run.
BR: What has been the best thing about serving on the Honor Council for your entire MBA career?
GS: Helping the students to become better and helping them change. So often we really see students change their mentality to school and life after they’ve faltered. Just being part of a student’s change.
BR: Favorite lunch day?
GS: Chicken pot pie.
BR: Coke or Pepsi?
GS: Coke.
BR: Favorite movie of all time?
GS: “Toy Story 3.”

John Mellow
President of the Service Club

Bell Ringer: Who or what inspired you to run for this position?
John Mellow: Junior year was a very meaningful year for me in terms of service. Through working for the Urban Debate League, Last Minute Toy Store, and other Service Club opportunities, I felt the difference I could make, so I decided to run.
BR: What facet of your personality adds the most to your leadership ability?
JM: I am organized enough to direct people, but I’m not overbearing. I can lead the Service Club effectively through example.
BR: What other extracurricular activities are you involved in?
JM: The Service Club will be the focus of my attention, but I’m also heavily involved in debate and the paper. Also, I’ll be doing some Mock Trial here or there.
BR: Are there any major goals set for next year for the Service Club?
JM: There are a ton of activity from seniors and juniors, but there is a drop off for sophomores and freshmen. I will reach out to the underclassmen and give them an opportunity.
BR: Will any new projects be introduced?
JM: Definitely. Most of the time, Service Club activity is driven by individuals coming up to us with ideas. In addition to continuing all of the projects from this year, we are always open to new ideas.
BR: Do you think students are involved in enough service?
JM: I’m not criticizing, but as a whole, probably not. The upperclassmen do a great job with leadership. The main problem is that Service Club needs to do a better job of reaching out to younger students.
BR: How do you plan on increasing participation?
JM: We’re going to try to get a Service Club sponsored in the junior school and are going to be more active with email and the opportunities Gmail affords to us.
BR: Favorite movie of all time?
JM: “Dr. Strangelove.”

Interviews conducted by Sam Weisen, Staff Writer. Photos by Parish Preston
May 31, 2012

By McLean Hudson
co-News Editor

As seniors receive word of their acceptance into the school of their choice, the infamous senior slide begins. While some make use of computer games and social media to fill their time, one group of students found an equally unproductive but much more creative outlet.

For those unfamiliar with the pop music scene, a song entitled “Call Me Maybe” by Carly Rae Jepsen came out earlier this year and quickly became popular due to its upbeat tempo and catchy lyrics. Naturally, spoofs were generated immediately and endlessly, one of the better known examples being the video made by Harvard’s baseball team.

Faced with a period devoid of homework to complete and tests to study for, MBA seniors Will Narramore (’12), Aaron Simonis (’12), Carter Hach (’12), Jake McDonald (’12) and Jack Beckner (’12) became one of the first groups to spoof the Harvard baseball team’s cover.

The video opens on a dejected-looking Carter, who is quickly joined by Will Narramore. After a chorus of lip syncing and a little choreography, Aaron and Jake come in for the second verse. When the four slide off camera, Jack Beckner comes in for a close-up solo, with the entire group finishing off with a dance to the chorus.

The video, once uploaded to YouTube, reached over ten thousand views, receiving both praise and criticism. Naturally, MBA students had mixed reactions. While many did not seem to understand that the video was made as a joke and felt that it reflected poorly on MBA, the majority found it entertaining.

Said junior Aidan McSharry, “Maybe it’s because I know the guys in the video, but I thought it was a lot better than the Harvard one.”

Carter Hach was surprised by the reaction to the video. “I never expected it to make it past our friends. It’s cool that it’s gotten as big as it has, but we really just made it because we were bored.”

Whether or not the intention was there, this group of seniors has set a new bar in senior sliding and general procrastination. Many students are already talking of trying to top the video’s view count with their own original productions next year.

Said Will Narramore: “Bring it.”

When the acceptance letters come rolling our way next year, it should be fun to see what manner of spoofs and covers will come from MBA students, and maybe, just maybe, we will not make total fools of ourselves in the process.

I showed this video to my whole class they loved it. lol :) 6 days ago

2/3 The guy at the front, so tempted to sing! :) 2 weeks ago

10K AND COUNTING: The video, a “Swag Style” cover of Carly Rae Jepsen’s pop hit, was posted on May 21 as a response to a more popular spoof by the Harvard baseball team. Since then it has accumulated over 10,000 views and received numerous comments.
Remember that time when John Mark and D.P. made us all copies of that really important study packet? The material was a bit lacking, but mostly shocking once we found out what it really was. Remember that time when Cayce Ortale asked to borrow our notes every day for the last 720 school days (we counted). Also, remember when Palmer Campbell called the whole class every day to explain a topic that we all understood? Those were good times.

Remember when Augie Houghton had a bowl cut? Remember when Matt Anderson wasn’t ripped? Unfortunately we don’t either. Remember that time when Grant Altschuler wore Vandy apparel? Neither do we.

Remember that time when Myles Anderson made small talk? It was so engaging!

Remember that time when Aaron Ardisson wore khaki pants? It was hot.

Remember that time when Joe Barry played football but then realized he liked theatre better? Good choice.

Remember that time when Brad Bars was at MBA? Apparently he has a brother in our class!

Remember that time when Decoursey Beach didn’t try? Apparently your GPA can change a full 2 points if you are insanely smart.

Remember that time when Jack Beckner dated Kate Barnes?

Remember that time when Weston Bell wasn’t talking about academia? We don’t recall that either.

Remember that time when Daniel Bellet was fat? He was HUGE.

Remember that time when John Mark Bellet was on time for English? Blake Burns doesn’t.

Remember that time when Henry Beveridge was Stockton’s brother?

Remember that time when Austin Blackwell caught that football? That was literally every day.

Remember that time when Scott Blackwell rolled in with his beat-up white minivan? There was candy in there.

Remember that time when Jamie Bradshaw ate 12 McGangbangs?

Remember that time when John Bradshaw tried to eat 12 McGangbangs?

Remember that time when Paul Brazil didn’t support a third party candidate?

Remember that time when Wills Brooks killed that raccoon with a trident? You might want to lay low for a while or find some relatives close by. Or stay with your date.

Remember that time when you saw Maclin Davis on campus and thought, how is HE an athlete?! And then you realized he will absolutely get free Subway for life?

Remember that time when Will Doebler wasn’t called AD?

Remember that time when we all had a crush on Rob Edwards’ girlfriend…and we all still do?

Remember that time when John Elam was fussy?

Remember that time when Harris Elledge was fat?

Remember that time when Preston Evans had the coolest mom ever?

Remember that time when Noah Fardon got a surprise in our notes every day for the last 720 school days (we counted). Also, remember when  Palmer Campbell called the whole class every day to explain a topic that we all understood? Those were good times.

Remember that time when Will Peffen got the most coveted award the Harpeth Hall senior house could offer?

Remember that time when Preston Palm was endeared to our notes every day for the last 720 school days (we counted). Also, remember when  Palmer Campbell called the whole class every day to explain a topic that we all understood? Those were good times.

Remember that time when Kevin Murphy wore that diaper he still is.

Remember that time when John Mitchell claimed ‘Mitchell Mondays' didn’t exist? They do. Remember that time when Roe Moore had that idea to do that choreographed dance? We all do.

Remember that time when John Morris got utterly harassed for the color of his skin? He stopped wearing sunscreen and it still didn’t work.

Remember that time when Kevin Murphy wore that diaper and it was somehow okay for him to do that but not for us to wear jorts? You’re still crazy, Kevin.

Remember that time when Will Narramore…too much to say here.

Remember that time when Cayce Ortale talked in that voice? Welcome to South Park.

Remember that time when Bryan Oslin tried too hard? He will be doing that until he retires. Remember that time when Eric Owings put that brownie where he wasn’t supposed to?

Remember that time when Preston Palm was endeared to and cherished by Commander Carr? Speechless. Remember that time when Will Peffen got the most coveted award the Harpeth Hall senior house could offer? Remember that time when Daniel Peters made a reference that wasn’t from a movie or Leoroy Jenkins? We can’t either.

Remember that time when Anderson Rader did that thing…that one time…when he talked to you?

Remember that time when William Reames thought he was the best looking guy at MBA? That was every day.

Remember that time when Jonathan Reilly had to do all of those poems because the school found out that he was awesome four years too late? We’re sorry Jonathan.
The passage of time may make us forget the details of the Class of 2012’s time on the Hill. So here’s an attempt to chronicle six years of triumphs, laughs and friendships.
Leaving the Hill

This fall, the Class of 2012 will travel to 54 universities in 25 states around the country.

Grant Altshuler
University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Matt Anderson
Rhodes College

Myles Anderson
University of Virginia

Aaron Ardison
Skidmore College

David Artega
Yale University

Joe Barry
Ohio State University

Blake Bars
University of Michigan

DeCoursey Beach
University of Alabama

Jack Beckner
Southern Methodist University

Weston Bell
University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Daniel Bellet
Hillsdale College

John Mark Bellet
United States Military Academy, West Point

Henry Beveridge
Sewanee, University of the South

Austin Blackwell
University of Tennessee, Chattanooga

Scott Blackwell
Washington University

Jamie Bradshaw
Cornell University

John Bradshaw
New York University

Paul Brazil
University of Colorado, Boulder

Wills Brooks
Military Service

Timothy Bulso
United States Coast Guard Academy

Blake Burns
University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Palmer Campbell
Middlebury College

Clay Cauble
University of Tennessee, Knoxville

William Cheek
Auburn University

Zach Chen
University of Pennsylvania

Ryland Close
University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Adam Cornett
University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Gray Curtis
Massachusetts Institute of Technology

Scott Dalton
Miami University (Ohio)

Matthew Davidson
Auburn University

Barton Davies
Sewanee, University of the South

Will Davies
University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Maclin Davis
University of Southern California

Austin Doebler
University of Virginia

Rob Edwards
University of Virginia

John Elam
Vanderbilt University

Harris Elledge
Tulane University

Preston Evans
University of Colorado, Boulder

Noah Fardon
Bowdoin College

Robert Forcum
Elon University

Thomas Forcum
Sewanee, University of the South

Andrew Fortunato
University of Colorado, Boulder

Connor Gawaluck
University of Colorado, Boulder

Greyson Gawaluck
Wake Forest University

Kyle Gray
University of Georgia

Nate Greene
Appalachian State University

Blair Griffith
Oberlin College

Carter Hach
University of Mississippi

Ross Martin
Southern Methodist University

Alex Hagar
Vanderbilt University

Benjamin Hamilton
Dickinson College

Kelly Haselton
University of California, Berkeley

Adam Hawiger
Saint Louis University

Drew Haynes
University of Mississippi

Adam Hobbs
Sewanee, University of the South

Trent Holbrook
University of Virginia

Jim Holloway
University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Hayden Holland
University of Colorado, Boulder

Rett Hopper
Washington University

Robert Hoover
Tulane University

Augie Houghton
Colgate University

David Howard
University of Evansville

Vaughn Hunt
New York University

Gray Jones
Washington & Lee University

Jamie Joyce
Tulane University

Jason Katseff
Indiana University

James Kay
Auburn University

Alex Kohls
Samford University

Michael Kosson
Tulane University

Warren Lipscomb
Lipscomb University

Will Logan
University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Daniel Mace
University of Virginia

Alex Rotker
Indiana University

Karthish Sastry
Princeton University

Brandon Sauer
Samford University

Joe Scherrer
Princeton University

Aaron Simonis
Texas Christian University

Hoke Smith
University of Georgia

Marshall Sorenson
University of Georgia

Logan Standard
Elon University

Will Stewart
Vanderbilt University

Kevin Murphy
Miami University (Ohio)

Will Sullivan
University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Racer Swain
Middlebury College

Winnie Van Cleave
University of Alabama

Eric Walsh
University of Wisconsin, Madison

Hugh Wells
University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Jack Whiston
University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Edward Wilson
University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

Hunter Woolwine
Sewanee: University of the South

Harry Woosley
University of Alabama

Jhamall Wright
Samford University

Connor Yakushi
Southern Methodist University

Tanner Yance
Samford University

The Class of 2012 would like to thank the College Counseling office for their help throughout the college process.
HOMEWRECKER
WITH ALWAYS FREE CHIPS AND SALSA!

4326 Harding Pl.,
Nashville, TN 37205
615-383-7871

401-A Cool Springs Blvd,
Franklin, TN 37067
615-778-MOES (6637)

452-A N. Thompson Ln,
Murfreesboro, TN 37129
615-906-MOES (6637)

181 Creekside Crossing
Brentwood, TN 37027
615-577-MOES (6637)

1001 Crossings Blvd,
Spring Hill, TN 37174
931-486-3021

free jr. burrito with purchase of an entree and 2 regular drinks

15% off any catering order of $100 or more

*One coupon per person, per visit. Not valid with any other offer. Valid only at Franklin, Nashville, Spring Hill, Murfreesboro & Brentwood, TN locations.

*One coupon per group, per visit. Not valid with any other offer. Valid only at Franklin, Nashville, Spring Hill, Murfreesboro & Brentwood, TN locations.

moes.com
Twelve for ‘12

In honor of the graduating class, The Bell Ringer picks a dozen MBA athletes from the last 15 years who have left indelible impacts on their sports and the school.

By George Swenson
Sports Editor

12. Clay Adams (‘11)
“A natural athlete who understood the game at a high level,” according to Coach John Harvey, Clay was a two-time All-American. His early high school success led him to be awarded with a scholarship to play at Syracuse, one of the top lacrosse programs in the country. “When you match his natural ability with his work ethic, he could be the best lacrosse player to play at MBA,” said Coach Harvey.

11. Holden Mobley (‘10)
A dynamic athlete on the football field and basketball court, Holden “always rose to the occasion,” in the words of head coach Kevin Anglin, and was the team captain for the 2010 state title team. Holden is currently playing at Belmont where he will be looked towards greatly as he enters his junior season.

10. Dave Farrell (‘99)
Dave started on both sides of the ball and often played through injury. Coach Brown recalls an incident where “Dave was pulling for the running back and not only only blocked the cornerback but ‘flat-backed’ him!” His inability to be stopped at the line defensively is what made him such a force and component of the 1998 state championship team.

9. Christian Waddey (‘08)
A true three-sport athlete (football, wrestling, and track) Christian Waddey found success in all three of his sports. As a senior he was the starting running back for the 2007 state championship team and rushed for over 1,000 yards. He also currently holds the school and state record for pole vault with a jump of 15’9” and was a vital member of the 4x200m relay.

8. Michael Fisher (‘04)
Michael started at quarterback for 3 years (2001-2003) and proved to be a crucial part of the back-to-back state titles in ‘02 and ‘03. Coach Brown recalls Michael passing for 246 yards and 302 yards in these respective title games. The fact that he had great receivers in Tom Santi and Brad French also helped greatly.

7. David Dean (‘99)
Arguably the most decorated runner in the school’s history, David won the state cross country title his senior year in addition to winning state titles in the 800m, 1600m, and 3200m in track. All this success was after runner-up finishes his junior year. He currently holds the school record for the 800m with a time of 1:55.7 and is a member of the school record 4x800 team.

6. Curtis Lovelace (‘08)
Coming out of high school, Curtis was the number one breaststroker in the nation. He holds the school record in the 200IM and the 100 Breaststroke in addition to the state record in the 100 Breaststroke. His success earned him a scholarship to swim at Stanford University during which he won the US Open in the 200m Breaststroke. This year Curtis will be competing for a spot on the U.S. Olympic Team.

5. Scott Denbo (‘99)
According to Coach Robert Pruitt, “Scott was the most explosive athlete I have ever coached. Although he was often undersized compared to other ‘putters, his technique and acceleration more than made up for it.” During his senior year, Scott threw an outstanding 67 feet. Since then no one has ever thrown past 60 feet. Scott holds the school and state records, and Coach Pruitt feels that these records could stand for a long time. After graduating from MBA, Scott won the Junior Pan-Am Games and went on to throw at Princeton for four years.

4. Maclin Davis (‘12)
A product of this year’s graduating class, Maclin has achieved unprecedented success in the pool. Being an integral part of the first two MBA state champion teams in 2010 and 2012, Maclin achieved numerous individual state titles and was named the Swimmer of the Year for the state meet in 2011 and 2012. His most acclaimed success is setting the national high school record in the 100m butterfly. Said head swimming coach Michael Dobbs, “Maclin possesses and demonstrates great power, strength and speed in the water which all allow him separate himself from the rest.” Next year, Maclin will be swimming at USC where his success will surely continue.

3. Brandt Snedeker (‘99)
An individual state title winner as a senior, Brandt has been the most successful professional athlete from MBA. After graduating in 2003 from Vanderbilt, he soon turned pro. After gaining his tour card, Brandt was named Rookie of the Year in 2007. In addition to three tour wins, Brandt gained much recognition from his 3rd place at the Masters in 2008. He currently ranks 26th in the World Golf Rankings.

2. Ingle Martin (‘01)
Known by Coach Brown “as the quarterback who put MBA Football on the national radar,” Ingle was the driving force behind MBA’s three consecutive state titles ranging from 1998 to 2000. His ability to lead allowed the team to achieve 32 consecutive wins and be nationally ranked by the USA Today for back to back seasons. Coach Brown recalls Ingle’s versatility as what set him apart from others: “The fact that he kicked a 50+ game winning field goal against McCallie only goes to show how much of a playmaker he was.” Ingle was highly recruited and played at Florida for two years before settling in at Furman University where he was able to set numerous school records.

1. Philip Simpson (‘01)
Throughout his four years on the Hill, Philip compiled over 100 wins and only 1 loss. He won state titles at various weight classes as a freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior in addition to making it to the finals of the high school national championships each of his four years. His success, however, does not stop after graduating in 2001. While at Army, Philip was a three-time college All-American, earning him the honor of having his singlet retired into the West Point Hall of Fame. After serving one year in Afghanistan, Philip began to train at the Olympic Training Center and has competed for national team. This past February, Philip’s training paid off as he won gold in the Pan American games in the 66kg weight class.
May 31, 2012

CHAMPS: The entire team celebrates after receiving the state championship trophy. With five of six starters returning, next year could possibly be even more successful.

Tennis team defeats rivals MUS to claim third consecutive title confidence going into state because we had already beaten Baylor, MUS and McCallie in dual matches this season, and we ended the year playing some of our best tennis.” With extra pressure from the previous two years, the team was still able to accomplish their goal of a three-peat. Karpos also added, “The state tournament was just as competitive as it’s been in the past, which is why it was so satisfying to win.”

>> FROM TENNIS, 1

Next year looks even brighter for MBA Tennis with five of six starters returning: rising Seniors Andrew Karpos, Andrew Graham, Aaron Junmonville, and Mark Lowe, and rising Juniors Kalyan Chadalavada and Fred Harwell. According to Coach Boysen, “If we make the improvements I know we are capable of making in the next eleven months then we will be a very hard team to beat at State next year.”

The team hopes to equal the standard set by McCallie, which won a historic four-peat from 2006-2009. MBA’s major competition next year will include MUS, Baylor and McCallie. Through their skills and leadership, a generation of Big Red tennis players will attempt to retain the state title for their entire careers.

Three graduating athletes look back on their experiences with the Big Red

Daniel Bellet

Daniel has been a starter on the wrestling team for five years. This past year, he was team captain and placed third in his weight class in the state.

By George Swenson

Bell Ringer: What do you see as your greatest achievement in athletics in your time at MBA?

Daniel Bellet: Probably placing at state five times in a row in wrestling. Not specifically what I placed, because I will always wish I could have done better, but rather what those placements represent. I am so proud to say that I stuck with the toughest sport out of all of them, especially here at MBA where the coaches not only prepare you for the top competition but rather for life. I am proudest to say that I was an MBA varsity wrestler for five years and shared in that great tradition.

BR: What will you miss the most about moving on from your high school careers?

DB: I will miss the people. My friends, of course, as we all go our separate ways. Leaving a group of such amazing people where you all feel like brothers is going be tough. I will also miss the amazing faculty here as they have always been incredibly effective in their teaching, coaching, and general advice for tough situations. The people here really embrace you the moment you walk onto campus and they won’t let go.

BR: How did your participation in athletics help to make your MBA experience better?

DB: I found such great discipline in wrestling and track that the quality of work was way higher at times that I was under physical stress compared to times when I was in the off season. In addition, when you are expected to represent MBA on the athletic field...or mat in the best way, you can put in perspective what is important and what is harmful to your high school experience and stay accountable to your coaches and peers.

BR: What are some memorable practices or competitions that will always resonate with you?

DB: I will always remember piling in a bus to go down to Chattanooga to wrestle or watch the state tournament for wrestling at UTC. Walking into an arena that big to compete always gave me the chills. I will never forget lifting in the MBA workout room with the quote on the back wall with Daniel Todd (`10) and my brothers. I will never forget the countless wrestling practices where we quite literally made a massive indoor slip-and-slide on the wrestling mats with our sweat (what Coach Simpson calls “chicken grease”).

BR: Is there any advice that you have for the players taking your spots as the new leaders of the team?

DB: The best advice I could give would be to stick with it. Stay committed to your goals. Whatever I have become or anything else that came before us, pushing us as underclassmen and inspiring us through leadership and hard work...You hear this a lot I’m sure but once you’re done and it’s your last practice or your last home match or whatever, you will wish you had it back.

Will Narramore

This year, Will has placed 2nd in the prestigious Great 8 at Vanderbilt and 2nd at the Buster Relays in the triple jump. He will continue to jump at High Point University starting this fall.

By John Tully

Bell Ringer: What do you see as your greatest achievement in athletics in your time at MBA?

Will Narramore: The highlight of my sports career was competing in the triple jump at the Junior Olympics during the summer before my senior year.

BR: What will you miss most about MBA athletics?

WN: The bonds you make with your teammates are unrivaled. Competing and pushing each other to the next level really forge relationships that will last a lifetime.

BR: What are your plans after MBA?

WN: Next year I will be attending High Point University where I will run for the track team.

BR: Can you describe the entire athletic college process?

WN: It was much more difficult than I expected. Finding the perfect balance between school and athletics was the hardest part. In the end, I feel that I made the correct decision.

BR: What coaches would you like to thank, and what will you remember about your MBA experience?

WN: I would like to thank all my track coaches, especially Coach Pippin and Coach Pruitt. I could not have made it without them.

Jamie Bradshaw

Jamie has been a starting member on MBA’s offensive line the past two years. This fall he will head to Cornell University to continue his career at the collegiate level.

By John Tully

Bell Ringer: What do you see as your greatest achievement in athletics in your time at MBA?

Jamie Bradshaw: My commitment to play D1 college football at Cornell.

BR: What will you miss the most about moving on from your high school careers?

JB: I’ll miss going into competition with all my friends here at MBA.

BR: How did your participation in athletics help to make your MBA experience better?

JB: I got to become much closer with my classmates and made more friendships through the hard work that we all went through each day during the summer workouts.

BR: What are some memorable practices or competitions that will always resonate with you?

JB: My most memorable moment has to be the 8th grade HVAC semi-final basketball game against BA.

BR: Is there any advice that you have for the players taking your spots as the new leaders of the team?

JB: The most important thing is to compete hard every day and leave it all out on the field.
That one team we have to beat...

A history of the Big Red’s greatest rivalries

By Jody Gorham
Staff Writer

There is always that one opponent that a team feels they have to beat. No matter what happens, it has to be that particular team. The kind of rivalry that makes every athlete and fan hold the mentality that “if that school has a team in my sport, we will win” is only present in high school sports, in which the families know one another but don’t necessarily like one another. From the early years of MBA athletics to just last season, MBA always has had that one team to beat at all costs, regardless of the sport.

Back in the old days (before the 1990’s) Father Ryan High School was that school to beat. It as the only other private school in MBA’s division, consisting of mostly public schools at the time. When asked the question, “Who was that team to beat while you were on the Hill?” MBA faculty member Mike Anderson (’93) instantly responded, “Father Ryan.” Being the other only private school in MBA’s division, consisting of mostly public schools at the time. The kind of rivalry that seems to be still present is the Father Ryan rivalry goes as far back as the two schools themselves, but by the beginning of the 90’s another school came into the picture.

In 1995, Brentwood Academy rose into contention as they knocked out MBA in the semi-finals of the state tournament in football, eventually winning state. In ’96, BA defeated MBA in the state quarterfinals in double overtime and went on to win the state championship for the second year in a row. These meetings sparked what would be a seven or eight year heated rivalry between the two schools.

Although Father Ryan won the football title in 1997, the football rivalry seemed to die down. The only facet of the rivalry that seems to be still present is the 17 consecutive wins over Ryan. Robert Ammored (’97) found MBA’s biggest rival to be BA. Although there was still hatred to be shared with Ryan, he said, BA was the team MBA had to beat. The rivalry peaked when two met again in the finals in 2000, when MBA won 8-7. MBA and BA would meet a few more times down the road, but the rivalry would soon be replaced by a school just down the street.

Opening in 2004 with only a freshman class, Ensworth High School made its way onto the map. By 2007, Ensworth was playing in the same division as MBA. In their first meeting, MBA won 14-0. In 2008, Ensworth won 41 to 28 which served as a wake-up call for the Big Red. The next year, Ensworth dominated MBA during the regular season, but MBA pulled out a playoff win to upset the Tigers. The Big Red have yet to beat EHS in football since.

Basketball began to emerge as a fan favorite around 2009 when MBA defeated EHS in the semi-finals of the state tournament. This rivalry has taken precedence over Father Ryan and Brentwood Academy in the past years and does not look like it is slowing down.

A possible reason that this rivalry is so intense is the family aspect. There are plenty of families where the children went to Ensworth Middle school and move on to go to MBA. There are also families where the kids split, one to MBA and one to Ensworth. With this family aspect integrated into the rivalry, the intensity increases. Proximity proves a factor as well since most of the students know each other. This causes a heated battle on the playing field and major bragging rights off it.

Seniors Henry Beveridge (’12) and Aaron Simonis (’12) both agreed that Ensworth is the number one rival for MBA at the moment. The basketball aspect of the rivalry has taken precedence over the football in the most recent years, as the students exchange chants and the town comes to fill up the gym. The confined, close and hostile atmosphere only adds to the intensity.

But the hatred-filled rivalries are what make playing and viewing so exciting. The desire to defeat another team every chance it gets and the bragging rights that come with it brings the intensity into the game. People come to watch these games because the atmosphere is so outstanding. Whether it be students chanting across the court, parents of the players hiding their face behind their hands, fans watching the Big Red stop Ensworth on fourth and short, or fans enduring a gut-wrenching loss, these rivalries will remain with us and be the subject of many “glory days” stories down the road.

Water polo poised to become newest team sport on the Hill

By Andrew Karpos
Staff Sports Writer

Although water polo is a sport seldom mentioned in this part of the country, it could become MBA’s newest athletic team in the near future.

Spearheading the effort to add water polo to MBA’s wide variety of athletics is varsity swim coach Michael Dobbs.

When asked how this whole idea came into being, Coach Dobbs explained: “Water polo was voted and accepted as a sport at the winter meeting held by TISCA (Tennessee Interscholastic Swim Coaches Association).”

USA Water Polo will help the TISCA set up the league and funds will be made available to any schools wishing to participate. The TISCA is looking to get as many schools onboard as possible before the inaugural season begins next school year.

The intention is to begin the season the week after the swimming state championships (mid February) and have it go on for two months, culminating in some sort of year-end state championship.

The state championship would be held in deep water pools such as the ones at the Sportsplex or the University of Tennessee. However, water polo can also be played in shallow water pools, so the JCC is a possible practice facility.

After meeting with Athletic Director Scott O’Neal to discuss this program, Coach Dobbs is very enthusiastic about the possibility of a water polo team, stating, “I think it is a great idea and gives MBA another sport to allow students to participate in. I like it because it could keep some boys in the water longer, which will help their swimming the following year.”
BON IVER
THE BEACH BOYS
FLYING LOTUS
SANTIGOLD

Bonnaroo sticks to classic formula, has something for everyone

By Lucas Littlejohn
Staff Writer

The formula for success that the people under the hood at Bonnaroo have crafted will be tested again this June. The Manchester, Tennessee music festival will likely prove for the eleventh year that this formula is wildly successful.

something about the combination of sun, sweat, live music, death due to sun poisoning/dehydration/claustrophobia, green grass, innumerable hordes of ill-clad men and women and everything in between, food trucks, Thom Yorke, mustache competitions, silent discos, activities involving something having to do with a giant dangling uvula and catapulting (probably fake) babies at old people, art exhibitions, Aziz Ansari, recycling competitions, rednecks, organized activists, the “40 Foot Big Ass Water Slide,” morning yoga and everything else that gives Bonnaroo its flair just has to make you smile.

This year, Bonnaroo intends not only to match its past success but also to create something new and unique for festival goers. The top of the music lineup for 2012 features an eclectic mix of all kinds of music industry giants, including Radiohead, the Red Hot Chili Peppers, Phish, the Beach Boys (you read that right), Bon Iver, the Shins, Skrillex, the Roots and Black Star.

I will give you a taste of the groups I’m psyched to see and those I’m psyched to miss.

Psychic to See

Little Dragon. This Swedish electro-jazz-alternative-chill group can’t be described by conventional music genres. They will be a blast to see. What will make the show memorable will be the beautiful singing of Yukimi and her stage presence.

The Beach Boys. I honestly have no idea what to expect out of these music giants, but I’m excited. I’m expecting one of two things: multiple rounds of Botox taken by band members throughout the show, or something having to do with dentures and a bad back.

Flying Lotus. I’ve never seen him live before, and I’m intrigued at how well he will be able to put on a show due to the incredible complexity and layering of his electronic masterpieces.

GZA Performing “Liquid Swords.” When I saw this, I honestly did a double take. The GZA? AtQ Bonnaroo?! Performing one of the best rap albums of all time?! At 2:30 in the morning??!

Two Door Cinema Club. These guys also fit perfectly at Bonnaroo - they seem to have a perfect music festival sound. Their energy will get the crowd moving as well.

Radiohead. Thom Yorke. That’s it.

Psyched to Not See

Mac Miller. Sorry, fanboys.

Alice Cooper. The whole spiked top hat thing just doesn’t do much for me.

Ludacris. I’m looking to have a good time at Bonnaroo 2012, and I feel like his show will be the opposite of that.

Yuna. This is the very last artist on a list of 150, the obscure of the obscure, so I probably won’t be seeing her show. If you go to MBA, and you are an avid Yuna fan…then congratulations (I guess?).

All in all, Bonnaroo has something for absolutely anyone and everyone. Being such a massively successful event, Bonnaroo will undoubtedly be a weekend to remember for the nearly hundred thousand in attendance.

Lolla 2012 strikes right balance of solid headliners, up-and-comers

By Chris Hooks
Staff Writer

After our “dirtier” brothers and sisters finish their party down in Manchester, the summer music festivals move northward to Chicago at the end of the summer. Although the accommodations are nice (camping in the park is off limits), the fun in Chicago’s Grant park rivals that of Bonnaroo’s every year. The Lollapalooza music festival is entering its 16th year in a fantastic fashion. The lineup is packed with old favorites as well as up-and-comers from all genres and sub-genres under the hot summer sun.

The headliners this year are as big as ever, with Red Hot Chili Peppers, The Black Keys and Black Sabbath gracing the main stage, just to name a few. Franz Ferdinand is returning, as well as Passion Pit, who are releasing a new album soon.

Other big names to check out are Nashville native Jack White, Florence + the Machine and indie favorites The Shins.

One of the biggest draws of Lolla every year is the lesser known and up-and-coming groups. While I don’t claim to be a big underground music aficionado, I can recommend a few bands for those of you with a little extra time to kill between big bands. For those who like Edward Sharpe, I would recommend Of Monsters and Men. They have similar styles, with male and female vocal harmonies, a prominent horn section, and folk-influenced songs.

Another act to check out is Alabama Shakes, the band that accompanied Jack White on his most recent tour.

What Up, English frontman Noah Fardon says he’s excited about Bombay Bicycle Club, a dance-rock band similar to his own band. Others to check out are The Head & the Heart, The Gaslight Anthem, and Toro Y Moi.

Electronic music has made its way into the popular scene recently, so the amount of house, electro, and dubstep artists at Lolla is no surprise. The big names this year are Avicii, famous for his track “Levels,” Kaskade and French duo Justice. Others to give a listen include dubstep pioneers Skream & Benga, Nero, Doctor P, and Porter Robinson, one of the greatest producers/DJ’s in the world. For those who prefer synthesized music but want to avoid the raves, you definitely have to check out Mike Snow and Metric.

This year’s Lollapalooza promises to be just as much of a party as ever, and music fans from all over the world are sure to venture to Chicago to enjoy the feast of music in Grant Park. While Lolla may not have historical heavy-hitters like The Beach Boys, Lollapalooza has a potentially better lineup than Bonnaroo.

So if you have to choose, avoid the mud and filth of camping in Manchester and trek on up to Chicago to enjoy the music and party at the very end of the summer.
LIFE IS SHORT. EAT BETTER PIZZA.

GREEN HILLS
2010 Richard Jones Road
615-292-2020

WEST END
2323 Elliston Place
615-329-8600

DINE-IN AVAILABLE

Buy One Large One-Topping Pizza
& Get a 10-Piece Jet’s Bread® FREE!

$1099

Expires 05/31/2012. Green Hills & West End locations only. Extra cheese, chicken and tax additional. Carry out only. Must present coupon. Only one coupon per order. Prices and offers subject to change without notice.
By Wells Hamilton and Harrison Davies
Staff Writers

The end of the year has been tough for the sophomore class. Quizzes and tests kept coming at a steady stream up until the doorstep of exams. The exams themselves were one hearty reminder of unpreparedness after another, with reactions ranging from utter shock to pleasant acceptance. To offset this unpleasantness, the writers of the class news section have decided to start awards night early with a long list of unrelated and well deserved awards. With no further ado, we proudly present the winners of the 2011-2012 achievement awards.

Truck of the year award: Twitter MVP Award: Grey Reames. “Caesar was an honorable man award”: Cal Fisher.

Longevity Award: Sam Harwell. Lax and Chill Award: Davis Lovvorn

This section of the awards is devoted to looking back, to evaluating the past and celebrating its glory. We commend those who were able to procure the coveted and prestigious Bell Ringer Awards and hope they continue this high level of achievement. Now it is time to look to the future as an old school year slips away, and we embrace the interim period before a new one begins.

We also figured we’d take this time to thank all of our most newsworthy individuals for their contributions to Sophomore News. Grey Reames, you’ve been fantastic, a constant source of inspiration for quality non-fiction reporting. Nick Boney, you’ve always been there for us when the going got tough. Your mere existence and many zany identities gave us the desire to keep reporting. Don Trogdon, there’s never enough to say about him. He always wants the entire room to share in his fortune. Bill Johnson, we couldn’t have done it without you. Keep on keeping on, whoever you’re with. Honorable Mention Newsworthy Achievement Awards go to Jonathan Barringer, DJ Mott and Stroud McMahan.

We hope you enjoyed the news as much as we enjoyed writing it. Have a great summer, see you all in three months.

SO LONG, ALGEBRA! These Sophomores say goodbye to their math class as they move on to become upperclassmen. Oh how foolish they are, not knowing what horrors will befall them next fall!
SENIOR SUPERLATIVES

MOST LIKELY TO...

- Grant Altshuler Come Back to All Alumni Events
- Matt Anderson Slap You on the Back
- Myles Anderson Get an Apartment with His Bestie Steve
- Aaron Ardisson Change the Way Humanity Perceives Theatre
- David Arteaga Succeed
- Joe Barry Become Artsy in an Awesome Way
- Blake Bars Go Pro in Something Other Than Athletics #NCAA
- Decoursey Beach Star in Project X
- Jack Beckner Have Twins
- Weston Bell Be King of the Cubicle
- Daniel Bellet Marry His Girlfriend
- John Mark Bellet Be Undecided on His College Major
- Henry Beveridge Never Leave High School
- Austin Blackwell Get It Right Get It Tight
- Scott Blackwell Be a Hoarder
- Jamie Bradshaw Coin a New McGangBang
- John Bradshaw Get a Perm
- Paul Brazil Talk to You About His Cheese
- Wills Brooks Inflict Pain on Terrorists
- Timothy Bulso Win at German Spotlight
- Blake Burns Crack the Barrel
- Palmer Campbell Rap with Ocean Jones under the Assumed Name “Stanky P”
- Clay Cauble Have a Throat Beard
- William Cheek Protect His Siblings
- Zach Chen Send Strange Emails to Dr. Boyd (and love something…you know)
- Ryland Close Pole Vault for Acceptance
- Adam Cornett Have a Collection of Rolling Luggage
- Gray Curtis Never Go Outside in College
- Scott Dalton Host the Oscars
- Matthew Davidson Not Pick on Somebody His Own Size
- Barton Davies Get the Most Attention from Females in College
- Maclin Davis Skip the Olympic Medal Presentation for a Concert
- Austin Doehler Golf…a Lot.
- Rob Edwards Always Be In Love with Lilly Carver (As we All Are)
- John Elam Sing to Appease His Girlfriend
- Harris Elsewhere Undergo a Drastic Transformation in College
- Preston Evans Live off of Playing Music
- Noah Fardon Write for “Rolling Stone”
- Robert Forcum Break Ties with Thomas Forcum Upon Entering College
- Thomas Forcum Spend 10 Years at College (But Forget Where it Is)
- Andrew Fortunato Play Professional Polo
- Connor Gawluk Double Fist Cigars at Graduation
- Greg Gawluk Play Super Smash Bros. into His Late Thirties
- Kyle Gray Find a Quarter on the Ground
- Nathaniel Greene Wear a Mink Coat
- Blair Griffith Start His Own Clothing Line
- Carter Hach Be the Spokesperson for Animal Cruelty on Commercials
- Alex Hagar Become a Dirty Comedian
- Mattison Hamilton Wear Lax Pennies and Mid-Calves at His Wedding
- Kelly Haselton Become a Right-Wing Politician in His Later Years
- Adam Hawiger Learn a Useless Language
- Drew Haynes Wake Up Fat One Day
- Adam Hobbs Attend Lollapalooza and Bonaroo for the Next 45 Years
- Trent Holbrook Be Looking For a New Roommate
- Jim Hollahan Befriend Your Grandparents
- Hayden Holliman Major in Skiing, Minor in Babes
- Rett Hooper Go to The St. Louis Zoo EVERY DAY
- Robert Hooper Lax Professionally…At the Club Level
- Angie Houghton Get A Scholarship for Being Native American
- Vaughn Hunt Be the Guy In the Booth
- Gray Jones Be a Republican Candidate for President
- Jamie Joyce Win a Grammy
- Jason Katseff Ride the Pine
- James Kay Be Referred to as ‘Frank The Tank’ in College Despite His Name Being James
- Alex Kohls Play Every Club Sport
- Michael Kosson Most Likely to Start JAG in College
- Warren Lipscomb Go Undergrad at Lipscomb, Grad School at Warren National University Just to Make His Resume That Much More Impressive
- Willard Logan Play Mandolin on His Front Porch…Or Yours
- Daniel Mace Go By His Middle Name In College
- Ross Martin Major in Garden Utensils
- Sam Martin Lead The “Rocky Top” Song At Every Home/Away Football Game
- JMAC Be Known As “That Funny Orange-Looking Kid” In College
- Jake McDonald Continue Wearing MBA State Championship Shirts from Teams He Wasn’t On
- Chris Meluch Get Arrested for Punching A President
- Conry Miller Domesticate a Cougar
- John Mitchell Freak Out When He Realizes He Actually CAN Miss Every Monday in College!!
- Roe Moore Join SAE
- John Morphis Sunscreen
- Kevin Murphy Wear A Diaper To Class
- Will Narramore Be “the Graduate”This Summer
- Cayce Orteale Wear His Letterman Jacket on the First Day of School
- Bryan Oslin Quadruple Major
- Eric Owings Be Kyle Mooney’s Right Hand Man
- Preston Palm Major In “If I Were A Sailor”
- Will Peffen Know the Most Girls in College
- Daniel Peters Quote a Movie in Conversation
- Anderson Rader Live With 5 Cats
- William Reames Move to Malibu in Search Of Sun and Women
- Jonathan Reddy Shock Everyone At The Reunion
- Dobbs Richards Look Like the Lineman from Remember The Titans
- Henry Richardson Hang Out With Dr. Kinch
- Alex Rotker Join the Israeli Army
- Karthik Sastry Make it Hail
- Brandon Sauermann Bro Out With Herr Sawyer
- Joe Scherrer Solve the Energy Crisis
- Aaron Simonis Be Told He Is Attractive by Every Girl He Meets
- Hoke Smith Do Something Really Obscure
- Marshall Sorenson Love College Life
- Logan Standard Major in Harry Potter Economics
- Will Stewart Run Against Gray Jones as a Democratic Counterpart Just Because It’s Gray Jones
- Nathan Stinson Become A Navy SEAL
- Clay Sullivan Name His First Daughter Anne Samantha Sullivan (and Laugh About It)
- Will Sullivan Play XBOX Live
- Baker Swain Marry a Rich Girl
- Winn Van Cleave Be Polite
- Eric Walsh Clean Animal Feces and Enjoy His Job
- Hugh Wells Re-join the Confederacy
- Jack Whitson Be an Executive at Lacoste
- Edward Wilson Go Bankrupt
- Hunte Woolwine Win a Tony
- Harry Woosley Ride a Unicorn
- Jhamall Wright Be a Runway Model
- Connor Yakuishi Sleep Through Our Graduation
- Tanner Yancy Marry a Supermodel

---

May 31, 2012

---
Juniors excited to be seniors, finally have made it

By McLean Hudson
co-News Editor

It seems that every year on our blessed hill goes by a little faster. This year, though, as most juniors will agree, could not have gone by quickly enough. Looking back on a year that included physics, many students’ first run-ins with AP exams and all-time highs in pressure in all facets of school life, summer will be a welcome relief. It can’t hurt, of course, to look back fondly on our last few months as juniors and the year as a whole. With that, I present to all those concerned, the junior news.

I’ll start by congratulating those who excelled in the spring sports this year. Jackson Flora, along with his trusted hair band, of course, was near the top of the 800 and 1600. Madison Rieke and George Swenson, who placed third in the open 800 and 1600 respectively, went to the state track meet, scoring in the decathlon and high jump.

Props also go to the 4x800 team, which won state and included juniors Clint Smith and George Swenson (special shout out to Madison Rieke who placed third in the open 800 and David Arteaga (’12) who was the anchor of the 4x800). It’s also worth mentioning that many juniors played key roles on the baseball team, with Brooks Best being the key player on the multiple sport teams.

Some students have reason to believe Mr. Lundgren is a communist.

Some students have reason to believe Mr. Lundgren is a communist.

Juniors excited to be seniors, finally have made it

By McLean Hudson
co-News Editor

It seems that every year on our blessed hill goes by a little faster. This year, though, as most juniors will agree, could not have gone by quickly enough. Looking back on a year that included physics, many students’ first run-ins with AP exams and all-time highs in pressure in all facets of school life, summer will be a welcome relief. It can’t hurt, of course, to look back fondly on our last few months as juniors and the year as a whole. With that, I present to all those concerned, the junior news.

I’ll start by congratulating those who excelled in the spring sports this year. Jackson Flora, along with his trusted hair band, of course, was near the top of the 800 and 1600. Madison Rieke and George Swenson, who placed third in the open 800 and 1600 respectively, went to the state track meet, scoring in the decathlon and high jump.

Props also go to the 4x800 team, which won state and included juniors Clint Smith and George Swenson (special shout out to Madison Rieke who placed third in the open 800 and David Arteaga (’12) who was the anchor of the 4x800). It’s also worth mentioning that many juniors played key roles on the baseball team, with Brooks Best being the key player on the multiple sport teams.

Some students have reason to believe Mr. Lundgren is a communist.

Some students have reason to believe Mr. Lundgren is a communist.

Juniors excited to be seniors, finally have made it

By McLean Hudson
co-News Editor

It seems that every year on our blessed hill goes by a little faster. This year, though, as most juniors will agree, could not have gone by quickly enough. Looking back on a year that included physics, many students’ first run-ins with AP exams and all-time highs in pressure in all facets of school life, summer will be a welcome relief. It can’t hurt, of course, to look back fondly on our last few months as juniors and the year as a whole. With that, I present to all those concerned, the junior news.

I’ll start by congratulating those who excelled in the spring sports this year. Jackson Flora, along with his trusted hair band, of course, was near the top of the 800 and 1600. Madison Rieke and George Swenson, who placed third in the open 800 and 1600 respectively, went to the state track meet, scoring in the decathlon and high jump.

Props also go to the 4x800 team, which won state and included juniors Clint Smith and George Swenson (special shout out to Madison Rieke who placed third in the open 800 and David Arteaga (’12) who was the anchor of the 4x800). It’s also worth mentioning that many juniors played key roles on the baseball team, with Brooks Best being the key player on the multiple sport teams.

Some students have reason to believe Mr. Lundgren is a communist.

Some students have reason to believe Mr. Lundgren is a communist.

Juniors excited to be seniors, finally have made it

By McLean Hudson
co-News Editor

It seems that every year on our blessed hill goes by a little faster. This year, though, as most juniors will agree, could not have gone by quickly enough. Looking back on a year that included physics, many students’ first run-ins with AP exams and all-time highs in pressure in all facets of school life, summer will be a welcome relief. It can’t hurt, of course, to look back fondly on our last few months as juniors and the year as a whole. With that, I present to all those concerned, the junior news.

I’ll start by congratulating those who excelled in the spring sports this year. Jackson Flora, along with his trusted hair band, of course, was near the top of the 800 and 1600. Madison Rieke and George Swenson, who placed third in the open 800 and 1600 respectively, went to the state track meet, scoring in the decathlon and high jump.

Props also go to the 4x800 team, which won state and included juniors Clint Smith and George Swenson (special shout out to Madison Rieke who placed third in the open 800 and David Arteaga (’12) who was the anchor of the 4x800). It’s also worth mentioning that many juniors played key roles on the baseball team, with Brooks Best being the key player on the multiple sport teams.

Some students have reason to believe Mr. Lundgren is a communist.

Some students have reason to believe Mr. Lundgren is a communist.

Juniors excited to be seniors, finally have made it

By McLean Hudson
co-News Editor

It seems that every year on our blessed hill goes by a little faster. This year, though, as most juniors will agree, could not have gone by quickly enough. Looking back on a year that included physics, many students’ first run-ins with AP exams and all-time highs in pressure in all facets of school life, summer will be a welcome relief. It can’t hurt, of course, to look back fondly on our last few months as juniors and the year as a whole. With that, I present to all those concerned, the junior news.

I’ll start by congratulating those who excelled in the spring sports this year. Jackson Flora, along with his trusted hair band, of course, was near the top of the 800 and 1600. Madison Rieke and George Swenson, who placed third in the open 800 and 1600 respectively, went to the state track meet, scoring in the decathlon and high jump.

Props also go to the 4x800 team, which won state and included juniors Clint Smith and George Swenson (special shout out to Madison Rieke who placed third in the open 800 and David Arteaga (’12) who was the anchor of the 4x800). It’s also worth mentioning that many juniors played key roles on the baseball team, with Brooks Best being the key player on the multiple sport teams.

Some students have reason to believe Mr. Lundgren is a communist.

Some students have reason to believe Mr. Lundgren is a communist.

Juniors excited to be seniors, finally have made it

By McLean Hudson
co-News Editor

It seems that every year on our blessed hill goes by a little faster. This year, though, as most juniors will agree, could not have gone by quickly enough. Looking back on a year that included physics, many students’ first run-ins with AP exams and all-time highs in pressure in all facets of school life, summer will be a welcome relief. It can’t hurt, of course, to look back fondly on our last few months as juniors and the year as a whole. With that, I present to all those concerned, the junior news.

I’ll start by congratulating those who excelled in the spring sports this year. Jackson Flora, along with his trusted hair band, of course, was near the top of the 800 and 1600. Madison Rieke and George Swenson, who placed third in the open 800 and 1600 respectively, went to the state track meet, scoring in the decathlon and high jump.

Props also go to the 4x800 team, which won state and included juniors Clint Smith and George Swenson (special shout out to Madison Rieke who placed third in the open 800 and David Arteaga (’12) who was the anchor of the 4x800). It’s also worth mentioning that many juniors played key roles on the baseball team, with Brooks Best being the key player on the multiple sport teams.

Some students have reason to believe Mr. Lundgren is a communist.
One last backpage: a list of lists

By Scott Dalton and McKay Proctor
Two Dudes, One Column

Before Scott leaves for the great Red North, we decided to frantically compile a list of the lists we would have done given the time and all our favorite ideas from those lists.

1. Top Starter Pokémon
   1. Charmander
   2. Squirtle
   3. Totodile

2. Top Items to hand to Mr. Gioia in assembly without explanation
   1. A bag of spaghetti sauce just like from the Spaghetti Supper video
   2. Holy Grail
   3. A voucher for one free microbe-punt (bonus points for gold leaf)

3. Top things to say while Kelly Hasleton (‘12) sprints across campus
   1. Run Charlie! And don’t stop until you get home to Grampa Joe!
   2. Faster Kelly! They’re gaining!
   3. And that day, for no particular reason, I decided to go for a little run. So I ran to the end of the road, but when I got there, I thought maybe I’d run to the end of town, but when I got there, I thought maybe I’d run across Greenbow County, and I figured since I’d run this far, might as well run across the great state of Alabama…

4. Best weapons for Mortal KOMBAt
   1. Wallabee rubber
   2. Frozen chicken patties
   3. Sharpened Microbe

5. Top Dr. Shackleford Shaq nicknames
   1. The Shacktus

6. Best hypothetical speakers to open the Dead Poets Room
   1. Charles Barkley
   2. Montgomery Bell
   3. Robin Williams (in character from Dead Poets Society)

7. Replacements for Dr. Neergaard’s Christmas songs
   1. “Study Hard, Grind Harder”: MP live in concert
   2. Barry Goldsmith doing high flying feats of daring
   3. Mr. Moxley doing observational comedy

8. Best new buildings
   1. Ryan Potter Memorial Paintball Arena
   2. Tom Dodson Memorial Bar & Grill
   3. Tom Kaiser Basketball and Waterfall Complex

9. Top Junior Superlatives
   1. Most likely to drive a Willy’s Jeep to school: Hayden Deakins
   2. Most likely to get a sunburn in the shape of a V on his chest at Bonnaroo: Nick Green
   3. Most likely to show up late for the end of the world: Mark Lowe

10. Top 2012 scenarios
    1. Tanning bed mom takes in so much UV radiation she goes nuclear
    2. Davidson White (‘13) uses his home chemistry set to split an atom of weaponized plutonium while he is try to make water turn blue.
    3. Two words: Pasta Riot

11. Top Summer bucket list items
    1. Track down the ghost of Isaac Ball
    2. Make a mashup of Mr. Gaither’s aphorisms. (Dubstep + Seneca = ????)
    3. Camp out to be the first one into new Wallace, iPhone style

12. Best items for your trip to Long Mountain
    1. Elephant Gun for fending off the locals
    2. Beautiful woman (alternately, Jack Emerson (‘13))
    3. Ambient light

13. Slogans for the Harpeth Hall Class of 2013
    1. World-ending Catastrophe in 20-1-3 (mascot: the Grim Reaper)
    2. 20-1-Trê Fô (mascot: Partha Reddy (‘11))
    3. Time out for T in 20-1-3 (mascot: Tejas Reddy (‘14))

14. Top places to lose your 7th grade buddy
    1. At sea
    2. In a snake pit
    3. Mike Tyson’s pigeon cages

15. Top ways we’ve mentioned Mila Kunis in this publication
    1. Black Swan
    2. Prom themes
    3. This list

16. Top three future senior gifts
    1. A parking garage on top of the soccer field
    2. Ambient light
    3. A bronze bust of Mark Lowe mid-stupor for the roundabout

17. Top Replacements for Byron
    1. A leopard gecko spray paint
    2. Peaches the guinea pig
    3. A Big Red (fictional animal that gave the school its mascot.)

18. Top improvements to the Founder’s Day race
    1. Rabid lions chasing the racers
    2. Jockey
    3. A wreath of roses that the winner must wear all day

19. Movies to replace the AP English Curriculum
    1. “Midnight in Paris” (Actually worked for Scott)
    2. “Shawn White Red Bull Project X Documentary”
    3. “White Chicks”

20. Nicknames for Bill Compton
    1. Jimmy Dean
    2. Buffalo Bill
    3. Billion Dolla Bill
    4. ROFL-Compter

21. Timeless Senior Year Soundtracks
    1. “Chumbawumba”
    2. “You’ve Lost That Lovin’ Feelin”
    3. DJ Assault..Nuff Said

22. Incredibly Distasteful Jokes
    1. REMOVED
    2. REMOVED
    3. CENSORED

23. Colors of Scott Dalton’s Wardrobe
    1. Carolina Blue
    2. MBA Red
    3. Beauty

24. Things to say to people in an elevator
    1. “I’m sure you’re all wondering why I’ve assembled you here.”
    2. “It wasn’t me.”
    3. “It was me.”